Creator History

Ted Shawn (1891-1972), well known for his pioneering efforts in American modern dance, began dancing as a means of physical therapy. In his third year of studying for the ministry at the University of Denver, he contracted a case of diphtheria, which left him paralyzed from the waist down. While he was nursing himself back to health, he realized that dancing would become his life-time career.

Shawn's first teacher was Hazel Wallack in Denver, with whom he studied ballet and ballroom exhibition dancing. At the same time he worked independently and began to perform his own choreographic works. In 1912 Shawn moved to Los Angeles, where he established a school and small performing company. The following year he and his dancing partner, Norma Gould, embarked with their company of Interpretive Dancers upon a cross-country tour and reached New York after nineteen performances.

While in New York Shawn arranged his first meeting with Ruth St. Denis. He had seen her perform in Denver and was convinced that they should work together. During their first meeting they discussed their artistic ideas and ambitions, and Shawn returned the next day to demonstrate his dancing. He was then hired by Miss St. Denis' brother and manager to be her partner. On April 13, 1914, Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn began a tour of the southern United States. In August of the same year they were married.

In 1915 they founded the first Denishawn school in Los Angeles with the intent of providing students with a diversified dance education. They believed that a dancer should learn all styles of dance rather than concentrating on one form; therefore, they offered classes in ballet, modern, ethnic, and creative dance. Within a few years Shawn and Miss St. Denis had established Denishawn schools throughout the United States. They built up an extensive repertory of spiritual, ethnic, character, and "music visualization" dances, which they performed with their company of Denishawn Dancers on tours of the United States, Canada, Europe, and the Far East from 1915-1932. Some of their dancers, including Martha Graham, Doris Humphrey, and Charles Weidman, later went on to develop the field of modern dance. In 1932 Denishawn disbanded, and Shawn and Miss St. Denis pursued separate careers.

Shawn established a company of all male dancers in an effort to prove that dancing was an acceptable art form for men. They rehearsed, choreographed, and trained at Jacob's Pillow, Shawn's farm in Lee, Massachusetts, and performed throughout the United States from 1933 to 1940. Shawn continued to perform, generally as a solo artist, until 1962, but after 1940 his efforts became more concentrated upon dance in education. He established the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival and University of the Dance which, by combining daily classes and evening performances, became the first intensive summer dance program in the United States. Shawn's primary aim again was to provide students with a well-rounded dance background, which he achieved by inviting performers and instructors from all over the world.

In addition to his work at Jacob's Pillow, Shawn lectured at universities and other institutions throughout the United States. During his lifetime he also published nine books, including: Ruth St. Denis: Pioneer and Prophet(1920), The American Ballet(1926), Gods who Dance(1929), Fundamentals of a Dance Education(1935), Dance We Must(1940), How Beautiful Upon the Mountain(1944), Every Little Movement(1954), Thirty-three Years of American Dance(1959), and One Thousand and One Night Stands(with Gray Poole, 1960).

Shawn continued to direct Jacob's Pillow every summer and also pursue his career as a scholarly speaker and writer until his death in 1972.

A. CORRESPONDENCE TO TED SHAWN OR HIS REPRESENTATIVE

1903-1971 (875 Items)

875 items: 15 from 1903-1918; 171 from 1920-1929; 311 from 1930-1939; 840 from 1940-1949; 251 from 1950-1959; 3,287 from 1960-1971. Permission required from correspondent during his or her lifetime. The correspondence before 1929 consists mainly of personal letters between Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn and documents the early years of their marriage. The 1930's correspondence, with the exception of four letters from Ted Shawn to Ruth St. Denis, consists of a series of letters between Ted Shawn and Lucien Price about Jacob's Pillow and Ted Shawn and his Men Dancers. Shawn used an edited version of these letters for the fifth section of his unpublished autobiography. (For a manuscript of proposed autobiography, see section III of this collection.) Correspondence from the 1940's through the 1960's consists of both personal and business letters, mainly written to Shawn by notable people in the dance world. A large portion of the letters were written by modern, ethnic, and ballet teachers and dancers from all over the world in regard to the summer programs at Jacob's Pillow. Approximately 400 letters are between Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn, mostly from the eight final years of St. Denis' life. Within each of the six time periods in this section, letters appear alphabetically under the correspondent's last name. For example, to locate letters written by Ruth St. Denis, one would have to look under the letter "s" in each time period. When Shawn is the correspondent, letters appear under the last name of the individual who received the letter. For example, letters written by Ted Shawn to Arthur Todd appear under the name Todd as TS/Todd, Arthur
