FRANCIS VINTON GREENE - BIOGRAPHY

Francis Vinton Greene (1850 - 1921), was a soldier, business executive, author and Police Commissioner of the city of New York.

Greene received his early education at Trinity School, N.Y., and Burlington College, N.J. He graduated head of his class at West Point in 1870. After two years on duty in the mountains of N.C., he spent four with the International Boundary Commission marking the northern border of the U.S. In 1877 the government sent him to Russia as Military Attaché to accompany the Russian army in the field in the war against Turkey. Greene received three decorations from the Czar, and on his return wrote a military history of the war that was regarded as "a standard work on the subject." When duties permitted Greene continued to write; among his books are: "Army Life in Russia," "The Revolutionary War" and "The Mississippi Campaigns in the Civil War."

From 1879 to 1885 Greene was Chief Assistant to the Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia and in charge of the public works of the district. From August 1885 to January 1886, he was an instructor in the Department of Practical Military Engineering at West Point. Greene was on leave from January 1886 to December of that year, when he resigned from the army and went into business. In 1889 Greene joined the National Guard of New York as Major and Engineer of the first brigade and in 1892 was elected Colonel of the 71st Regiment.

For his services during the Spanish - American war, Greene was made a Major - General of volunteers on August 13, 1898. In September of 1898 he returned to the U.S. and was assigned to command a division of the seventh army corp, then stationed in Georgia, but was soon sent to Havana, Cuba, having been selected governor of the city. Greene declined the assignment and resigned from the volunteer army on February 28, 1899. At this time Greene went back into business.
