Description Richard Rogers Bowker (1848-1933) had a varied and distinguished career as editor, author, journalist, publisher, business executive, political reformer and library promoter. Born in Salem, Mass., his family removed in 1857 to New York City where he was graduated from the Free Academy (later, City College). His many posts include that of editor of the N.Y. Evening Mail (ca. 1868-85), editor and publisher of Publisher's Weekly (1884-1933), editor (from 1876) and publisher (from 1911) of the Library Journal, and that of vice president of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of New York, of the De Laval Steam Turbine Co. and of the De Laval Separator Co. He was active in political reform and a founder of the Independent Republican Mugwump movement. The papers consist of general and family correspondence, personal papers, subject papers, letterbooks, writing diaries and travel journals, accounts, cancelled checks, papers of Daniel Rogers Bowker, calling cards, invitations, scrapbooks, photographs, and printed matter. There are a few unsorted papers. The general correspondence which is arranged in alphabetical order and includes carbons of outgoing letters, reflects Bowker's many editorial, publishing, and business positions noted above, as well as his political and civic interests and associations including free trade, political reform, copyright, civil service, postal reform, and librarianship. Correspondents include American Library Association, Edward Atkinson, Alice G. (Mitchell) Bowker, Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, City Club of New York, De Laval Separator Co., Melville Dewey, William Isaac Fletcher, Adolph G. Growoll, Harper and Brothers, Edwin T. Hiscox, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., George Isles, Augusta H. Leypoldt, Library of Congress, Arthur Wellesley Milbury, Herbert Putnam, Reform Club, Anne Isabella, Lady Ritchie, Theodore Roosevelt, Edward Morse Shepard, Spencer, Trask & Co., David Ames Wells, George Foster Peabody, George Haven Putnam, Everett Pepperrell Wheeler. The family correspondence (1857-1932) consists of his correspondence with his sister, Caroline Theresa Bowker, his brother Peter, and other relatives. The personal papers consist of childhood letters, drafts of letters to unidentified correspondents, school reports, compositions (cont'd.)

ACCESSION SHEET

Title Richard Rogers Bowker. Papers

notebooks, membership certificates, passports, birthday letters, funeral records, and letters of condolence to Mrs. Bowker on her husband's death. The subject papers consist of papers relating to copyright, the Edison papers, papers relating to free trade and tariff reform, and to Bowker's biography. The copyright papers include correspondence relative to the promotion and revision of domestic and international copyright law. Correspondents include American Copyright League (Robert Underwood Johnson), American Publishers' Copyright League (George Haven Putnam), Library of Congress (Herbert Putnam), National Association of Book Publishers, Print Publishers Association of America, and Thorwald Solberg. The Edison papers include correspondence of Bowker as first vice-president of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of New York, with other electric companies, union officials and with George Foster Peabody and Spencer Trask. There is also correspondence (1889-1927) with Thomas Alva Edison and with Miller Reese Hutchison, chief engineer to Edison; correspondence (1898-1903) with the Association of Edison Illuminating Companies, and with Edison Pioneers. The papers relating to free trade and tariff reform include correspondence (1880-1929) of Bowker as secretary of the American Free Trade League and as a member of the New York Free Trade Club, relating especially to the organization of the Free Trade Conference held at Detroit (1883). Much of the correspondence is with the Iowa State Free Trade League, the Missouri Free Trade League, the Michigan Free Trade League, and with North Worthington C. Ford, Abraham L. Earle, and George Foster Peabody. There is also printed ephemera and notes and memoranda by Bowker. The papers relating to Bowker's biography consist of correspondence (1931-52) mainly of Rose Weinberg, former personal secretary to Bowker, with Allan Nevins, Trumbull White, E. McClung Fleming, Caroline T. Bowker and others relating to the completion of a biography of Bowker. The letterbooks (1875-1913) in 17 volumes have the same content as the general correspondence. Included are two volumes of correspondence (1888-91) of A.E. Walradt and William Moore of The Economist Press, and one volume of correspondence (1889-91) of George Isles as secretary of the Society for Political Education of which Bowker was chairman. The writings consist of manuscripts, typescripts and galley proofs of Bowker's writings and speeches including his editorials in the Library Journal and Publisher's Weekly, poems, books and autobiographical writings. Included are a few writings by other. The diaries (1859-1932) are mainly pocket-size and record briefly his comings and goings, appointments and engagements. Included are a pocket size address and account books. The travel journals (1860's-1926) reflect Bowker's travels in New York, California, the West Indies, Panama, England, Europe, Jerusalem, Russia and his trip around the world in 1898. His social and professional life in England in 1881 is described in great detail. There are original ms. texts for most of the journals and typed transcript copies. The accounts (1870-1932) consist of receipted bills for personal expenditures. Included is one account book (1889-1901) of business accounts. There are also bank books, cancelled checks, and personal ledgers (1893-1910). The papers of Daniel Rogers Bowker (b.1820) Bowker's father consist of his correspondence (1880-95) with his son relative to business and family matters, and patent papers (1893-95) consisting of American and foreign letters patent for improvements in grain storage warehouses together with collateral correspondence. The calling cards and invitations are unsorted. The scrapbooks (1868-1958) in six volumes contain personal and political papers including clippings of writings by and about Bowker, obituaries, memorial tributes, and printed campaign literature issued by the Independent Republicans in New York relative to the N.Y. State gubernatorial campaign of 1879 and the presidential campaigns of 1880 and 1884. The photographs include portraits of Bowker, a few photographs of other persons, and three daguerreotypes of unidentified persons. Present with the photographs is a small fragment of electrical cable from the Edison estate said to be the first example of underground cable which was first used in Nov. of 1880. The printed matter includes copies of the periodical The Million (1884-86) and Iowa journal devoted to tariff reform, copies of several New York newspapers especially the Evening Mail; copies of The Freeman (1885) devoted to tariff and civil service reform, pamphlets on bimetallism, campaign literature relative to the presidential campaigns of 1884, 1896 and 1904.
