Scope and Content Note

The Harriet Tubman research materials represent the results of several years of research by historian-journalist Earl Conrad into the life and activities of Harriet Tubman, known as the Moses of her people because of the over 300 slaves she lead to freedom via the Underground Railroad. The collection consists of correspondence between Conrad and potential sources of relevant information and documentation; research notes from published works; statements and texts of interviews with members of Harriet Tubman's family as well as with persons who knew or worked with her, and the various typescripts and drafts preceeding Conrad's completed publications.

The collection was assembled while the research was being done, generally in 1939 and 1940, and therefore reflects the documents and resources available at that time.

Series C - Publishers' Correspondence 1938-1941

Publishers' correspondence includes Conrad's correspondence with various publishers in an attempt to get his completed manuscripts on Tubman published. The letters are important in that they illustrate the strong resistance put forth by the publishing industry against anything relating to the Black experience, even when it dealt with an historical figure of Harriet Tubman's stature. These letters also document the results of an attempt to have the work published in serial form in magazines and newspapers.

Series D - Statements and Interviews 1905-1940

Statements and interviews consists of notes and transcripts of interviews with people who knew or worked with Harriet Tubman and members of her family. They were important sources who gave direction toward further documentation of her activities. They also illustrate the impact that she had had on those around her and the high regard in which she was held even into her later years and after her death.

Series H - Manuscripts and Typescripts of Works by Conrad

This series consists of various drafts and typescripts of the books and articles about Harriet Tubman which developed out of the research materials represented in the preceding six series. In processing the papers an attempt was made to reconstruct the drafts as they progressed to the final stage. Where this was not possible an attempt was made to key the bits and pieces to the chapters in the publication Harriet Tubman (Washington, D.C., The Associated Publishers, Inc., 1943). Unfortunately, some fragments remained which could not be related to specific parts of the books, therefore these appear at the end of the series in a number of folders labeled "Unidentified Fragments."
