Creator History

Kathleen Collins (1941-1988) was a playwright, filmmaker, director, novelist, short story writer, and professor of film history and production. She was born on March 18, 1942, in Jersey City, New Jersey. She attended Skidmore College, where she was introduced to activism upon joining the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC); as a member of SNCC, she worked on black southern voter registration. After receiving her bachelor's degree, she earned a master's degree in French literature and cinema at the Middlebury College program at Paris's Sorbonne. From 1967-1974, Collins worked as a film editor for various organizations, including the BBC, Craven Films, and William Greaves Productions, among others. She taught in the Theatre Arts Department of City College in New York City from 1974 until her death in 1988.

Collins was the first African American woman to write, direct, and produce a full-length feature film (The Cruz Brothers and Miss. Malloy, 1980, which was based on a Henry Roth novel). Her second feature film, Losing Ground (1982), which she directed and coproduced, was based on her original screenplay; it received international acclaim. Also a playwright, her 1982 play, The Brothers, was named one of the twelve outstanding plays of the season by the Theatre Communications Group. In 1982 and 1983, she was a finalist for the Susan Blackburn International Prize for Playwriting. Although only a small amount of her work was published before her death in 1988, she wrote six playscripts, over fifteen short stories, and five screenplays. Some of this material was published in two posthumous publications, her short story collection, Whatever Happened to Interracial Love? (2016), and Notes from a Black Woman's Diary: Selected Works of Kathleen Collins (2019). These publications not only exemplify the breadth of her talent but have introduced her work to a wider audience.

Scope and Content Note

The Kathleen Collins papers consist of personal and biographical material, correspondence, professional matter, and writing. The personal material includes diplomas, a sketch pad, and her parents' yearbooks, among others. The correspondence, which is all personal, contains letters to and from family and friends; additionally, there is some correspondence between her daughter, Nina Collins, and various family members and friends after Collins's death. The professional matter, which is the smallest series, is comprised of professional correspondence with editors and producers, contracts, and printed matter. The last series, writing, is the largest; it contains manuscripts, published and unpublished, of her various writing, including playscripts, short stories, screenplays, and a novel. This series also consists of writing by Collins's daughter, Nina Collins, who edited Notes from a Black Woman's Diary.

Arrangement: Arranged into four series: (1) Personal; (2) Correspondence; (3) Professional; and (4) Writing.

Writing 1971-2007

The majority of this series, the largest, contains typescript drafts of Collins's various writing, including her playscripts, short stories, and screenplays, among others. Most of the drafts have handwritten edits, but many are photocopies.

Arranged into two subseries: (1) Published and (2) Unpublished.

Published 1975-1988

During her life, only a few works of Collins's were published, some of them included here. Many of Collins's previously unpublished work was published posthumously in two volumes, Whatever Happened to Interracial Love? (2016) and Notes from a Black Woman's Diary (2019). This series mostly contains the material from these two publications, in the order in which they are organized in the final publications themselves. Since Nina Collins edited the latter publication, many of the drafts contain her handwritten comments (usually in colored ink).

Arranged by publication date.

- b. 4 f. 9      "Losing Ground/Three Short Shorts", StoryQuarterly 5/6 1977
Includes typescripts drafts, one with handwritten edits, and the final published version. Two of the stories, "Only Once" and "Stepping Back", were later published in Whatever Happened to Interracial Love?.
- b. 4 f. 10      "Scapegoat Child", Bachy 14, spring/summer edition 1979
Includes final published version; later published in Notes from a Black Woman's Diary.
- b. 4 f. 11      Losing Ground in Screenplays of the African Experience*, edited by Phyllis Rauch Klotman 1991
- b. 6 f. 1      Excerpt from Lollie: A Suburban Tale*, Drumvoices Revue, vol. 3, #1-2, fall/winter edition 1993-1994
Includes final printed version; later published in Notes from a Black Woman's Diary.

- b. 8 f. 2 Letter typescripts 1962-1988
Typescript includes purple comments from Nina Collins; includes some of Kathleen Collins's mother's letters. Typescript most likely transcribed ca. 2007.

Plays

The original collection was housed in binders, organized by Nina Collins; she added a table of contents, which is included in the unpublished series (since it includes unpublished material). In this table of contents, some of the scripts are marked with numbers. It is unclear what these numbers represent, but they possibly stand for the number of the draft.

- b. 8 f. 3-4 The Brothers 1980
Two copies, one of which is a photocopy. The copy in folder 3 is marked as #3 on Nina Collins's table of contents.
- b. 8 f. 5-6 Begin the Beguine typescripts 1984
The original typescript includes four one-act plays, which are listed separately in the final publication of Notes from a Black Woman's Diary. There are two copies here, one of which is a photocopy. There is also a separate typescript just of The Reading in folder 6.

Screenplays

- b. 8 f. 7 A Summer Diary bound typescript and separate synopsis 1982
- b. 8 f. 8 Losing Ground typescript with handwritten edits (photocopy) 1981
Marked as the "Director's copy".

Unpublished 1971-2007

This subseries consists of Collins's unpublished material, including her diaries and writing not included in her two posthumous publications. Although some of the playscripts included here were produced, they were not technically published. This subseries also consists of writing by Nina Collins, mostly notes on her mother's life and work and interviews with family and her mother's friends; presumably these materials were intended for inclusion in Notes from a Black Woman's Diary. Also, Nina Collins's table of contents for her mother's playscripts and short stories, originally housed in binders, are included here.

Arranged first alphabetically by type of writing, then chronologically within each one.

- b. 9 f. 1-2 Diaries (photocopies) 1985-1987
Includes handwritten excerpts, all of which are photocopies, from Kathleen Collins's diaries; also contains a typed version with handwritten notes by Nina Collins.
