Summary

Creator: Salzer, Felix

Title: Felix Salzer papers

Date: 1897-1995

Size: 15 linear feet (57 boxes)

Source: Bequeathed to the NYPL by Mrs. Hedwig Salzer upon her death in 2000

Abstract: The Felix Salzer Papers represents the work of Felix Salzer (1904-1986), an Austrian-born music scholar who came to the United States in 1939 and has had a lasting impact on music theory. Salzer's work in the United States was highly influential, primarily in the dissemination of Schenkerian theory and analysis. The present collection encompasses both Salzer's scholarly materials and a portion of the papers of his Viennese mentor, Heinrich Schenker (1868-1935). Broadly speaking, the collection contains music analyses, correspondence, academic notes, significant texts (both published and unpublished), and other items.

Access: Some collections held by the Dance, Music, Recorded Sound, and Theatre Divisions at the New York Public Library for the Performing Arts are held off-site and must be requested in advance. Please check the collection records in the NYPL's online catalog for detailed location information. For general guidance about requesting offsite materials, please consult:

Creator History

Overview of life and achievements Felix Salzer (June 13, 1904 - August 12, 1986) was a highly influential music theorist in the United States in the second half of the 20th century. He was born into one of the wealthiest families in late 19th century Europe, the Wittgenstein family (on his mother's side), and was immersed in music from a very early age. As a child, Salzer was raised by an English governess, and thus grew up bilingual in German and English. He studied piano with Malwine Brée, a pupil to Theodore Leschetizky and his chief assistant, and attended the Theresianum from 1914-1922, where he earned his Matura. He studied composition and theory first under Hans Weisse (from ca. 1920-1931), and then later theory under Heinrich Schenker (from 1931-1935). He studied musicology under Guido Adler and Robert Lach at the University of Vienna from 1922-1926, earning his doctorate with the dissertation Die Sonatenform bei Franz Schubert. He also studied conducting at the Akademie für Musik und darstellende Kunst Wien under Oswald Kabasta from 1930-1935. After Schenker's death in early 1935, Salzer worked in his first teaching capacity with Oswald Jonas and Moriz Violin at the Neues Wiener Konservatorium, the first Schenker Institute in Vienna. Salzer also published his first book, Sinn und Wesen der abendländischen Mehrstimmigkeit, in the same year. Salzer and Jonas jointly founded a periodical, Der Dreiklang, from 1937-38. Salzer taught at the Mozarteum in Salzburg in the summers of 1935-1936, and also toured throughout Europe during this time to lecture on Schenkerian theory (in Holland, England, and former Yugoslavia). Salzer fled Vienna in July 1939 for Paris, following the Nazi annexation in March of the previous year. On September 19, 1939 he married Hedwig Lemberger-Lindtberg (his second wife). They both left for the U.S. from Southampton, England in December 1939. In 1945 Salzer became a naturalized U.S. citizen. Salzer was enormously successful as a scholar and pedagogue in the United States. Salzer worked at the David Mannes School of Music (after 1953, known as the Mannes College of Music) from 1940-56 (1948-55 as Executive Director) and later from 1962-1981 (as a teacher and in various advisory and administrative roles), and at Queens College and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. He also taught at the Ralph Wolfe Conservatory (1940-42) and the 92nd St. YMHA (1943-45). He began as a visiting professor at Queens College of the City University of New York in 1956-57, but then returned from 1963-71 as associate professor (with a promotion to full professor in 1966). He became professor emeritus in 1971. Salzer also taught as a visiting professor at a number of other institutions: UCLA (spring semesters of 1959-1960); the Peabody Institute (spring 1962, as part of the Ford Foundation's "Conductors Project"); the New School of Social Research (1962-63); and the University of Oregon (summer 1965). Salzer was also chairman of Greater New York Chapter of the American Musicological Society 1962-64, and acted as a member of AMS council 1963-65 and again 1969-71. He had a long relationship with the Music Teacher's National Association, and gave the keynote address for the association in 1973. Salzer published two major pedagogical works: Structural Hearing (1952) and Counterpoint in Composition (1969, co-authored with Carl Schachter), and wrote the forward to the second edition of Five Graphic Music Analyses (1969). Structural Hearing, in particular, gave Salzer wide recognition as a scholar and began a burgeoning interest in Schenker theory. This work also created much debate amongst scholars for its many departures from Schenker's ideas, and for its application of Schenker's techniques to music outside of the 18th and 19th centuries. Nevertheless, such work was greatly influential to later musicians and scholars, many of whom used Salzer's ideas as a foundation for their own work. During his life this influence made its way to a number of other countries: Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, and Israel. Family Salzer's familial associations included members of the Wittgenstein, Salzer, Stockert, Sjögren, Lemberger-Lindtberg, Stonborough, and Steiner families, evidence of whom can be found in the Salzer Papers. Many members of these families became important and influential figures. Salzer's grandfather, Karl Wittgenstein (1847-1913), was one of the leading European industrialists in the late 19th and early 20th century, referred to by many as the "Carnegie of Europe." His uncle, Ludwig Wittgenstein (1889-1951), was one of the most influential philosophers of the 20th century. Paul Wittgenstein (1887-1961), another uncle of Salzer, was a prominent pianist during his life, even after the loss of his right arm during World War I. The life of the Wittgenstein family is illuminated by the eldest daughter, Hermine Wittgenstein (1874-1956), whose extended memoirs entitled Familiennarrationen was completed in 1944. This work was dedicated and given to her nieces and nephews as a gift, which included Salzer. The collected letters of Ludwig Wittgenstein, housed in the Österreichische Nationalbibliothek, were photocopied and distributed to each member of the family as well. The Salzer Papers contains both of these historically important documents. In addition, the family was actively engaged in supporting the arts, and regularly welcomed many prominent figures to their household: figures such as Johannes Brahms, Joseph Joachim (a relative of the Wittgenstein family), Gustav Mahler, Johannes Messchaert, Pablo Casals, and many others would frequent the Wittgenstein household to give private concerts or simply pay a visit. Salzer's father, Maximilian Salzer (1868-1948), was part of the finance ministry for the Austrian government and a personal financial advisor to the Wittgenstein family. His grandmother Leopoldine Wittgenstein is said to have had the greatest musical influence on him. His mother, Helene Wittgenstein-Salzer (1879-1956), did some choral conducting and maintained correspondence with many noted personalities in the music world of the late 19th and early 20th century. Salzer had two sisters, the elder, Marie (1900-1948), who married Fritz-Lothar von Stockert, and the younger, Clara Salzer (b. 1913, d. [year ?]), who married Arvid Sjögren in [year ?]. Salzer also had an older brother, Fritz Salzer (b. 1902), but little is known about him to date (presumably he died at an early age due to a hunting accident). Salzer's wife, Hedwig Lindtberg Salzer (1905-2000), was also a member of a distinguished family. Her brother, Leopold Lindtberg, was a noted Swiss film and theatre director, and his daughter (Hedwig's niece), Bettina Lindtberg, is an actress. Relationship with Schenker Salzer first began to learn about Schenker's ideas through Hans Weisse, a Viennese composer who was one of Schenker's first pupils and a close associate of the Salzer family. When Weisse found a teaching position in the United States at the David Mannes School of Music in 1931, he suggested that four of his students study with Schenker: Trude Kral, Greta Kraus, Manfred Willfort, and Salzer. They began their studies with Schenker in October 1931 as a seminar. The work of this seminar was significant because it eventually lead to the publication of the Fünf Urlinie-Tafeln in 1932 (published by Universal Edition and the David Mannes School of Music). Thirty-seven years later, in 1969, Salzer would have the Five Graphic Music Analyses republished under Dover publications, and include a new introduction and a glossary giving English analytic terminology. A second volume of the Fünf Urlinie-Tafeln was planned and worked on by Schenker and his seminar, but the planned publication never came to fruition. The analyses pertaining to this second edition survive in the Salzer Papers in Mapped 28 (Series 2, sub-series 5). Salzer also saved his correspondence with Schenker, found in Series 1, sub-series 3b. In the fall of 1934 Schenker decided to disband his seminar, but asked Salzer to remain and study with him privately. This relationship did not last long, for Schenker died in January of 1935. Salzer kept in touch with Jeanette Schenker during the next few years. In April of 1936 he made an agreement with her to purchase a portion of Schenker's Nachlass. The remainder of the Nachlass was sold or given away to various people; the largest portion of given to Ernst Oster before he fled Vienna. Salzer and Jonas published an essay describing the contents of the Nachlass in Heft I of Der Dreiklang, which mentions important items in Salzer's possession, such as Schenker's study of thoroughbass and his commentary on C.P.E. Bach's Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen. Teaching career Salzer's most important appointment during his lifetime was certainly at the Mannes School of Music. Salzer continued the work of the late Hans Weisse (who died unexpectedly in 1940) in disseminating Schenker's work to the American music world by devising the first theory curriculum based on Schenkerian principles. Through the use of Salzer's curriculum, Mannes became an epicenter for Schenkerian studies. During Salzer's first decade at Mannes he taught a wide variety of subjects, including theory, history, composition, pedagogy, and piano (according to the prospectuses of Mannes from the time). Salzer even entitled his first analysis course "Structural Hearing," a name that would become the eventual title of his book in 1952. In addition, the whole theory curriculum at Mannes underwent enormous changes during Salzer's time there. Much of this curriculum still exists under the title "Techniques of Music" (a name first used in the prospectus to Mannes of 1955, Salzer's last year as full-time member of the Mannes faculty). Salzer's work as Director of the school 1946-55 was also exemplary. A year after the publication of Structural Hearing, he would achieve another milestone for the school: he would transform the Mannes School of Music into the Mannes College of Music, thus giving the school a more academic focus to combine with a musical education. Salzer stayed one more year at Mannes after he stepped down as director in 1955, but would return from 1962 to 1981 to work with the school in various capacities as teacher and advisor. Between 1977 and 1979 Salzer played a role in preventing the board of trustees of Mannes from merging with the Manhattan School of Music, as many feared this would bring about the extinction of Mannes. Historically, this debacle resulted in the removal of the trustees in May 1979 by the Board of Regents for "collective neglect of duty" (as reported in the New York Times, May 25, 1979), the first time this had happened in the State of New York since the 1920's, and only the second time in the State's history. Academic career Salzer's dissemination of Schenker theory was not limited to the classroom or to his pedagogical works: his work as editor and scholar were also key factors. Beginning in the 1960's, Salzer worked on The Music Forum (co-edited with William Mitchell), a periodical of enormous scope. The essays published in The Music Forum ranged extensively—from analyses of and essays on pre-tonal, tonal, post-tonal, and non-Western music, to manuscript studies, studies in rhythm, translations of theoretical treatises, and mathematical aspects of music. Issues of this periodical have appeared between 1967 and 1987. Salzer worked with Mitchell on vols. 1-3, and later with Carl Schachter on vols. 4-6. In many ways The Music Forum can be seen as an extension of Salzer's earlier work with Jonas on Der Dreiklang, albeit one with a different cultural orientation and epistemic outlook. Salzer himself would publish an article in each volume (vols. 1-5) on a variety of topics. Essays in The Music Forum were often extensive monographs, and the graphics represented some of the finest autography of the time. Salzer's own scholarly interests ranged from the analysis of tonal music and the analysis of variations, to the history of tonality (with a particular focus on the analysis of medieval repertoire) and concert programming/musical criticism. Salzer had a deep commitment to the music of the 18th and 19th centuries, given his musical upbringing in his family and his analytical studies with Weisse and Schenker. His first published work was a study of the meaning of ornamentation in the keyboard music of C.P.E. Bach, an article that used as its basis Schenker's Ein Beitrag zur Ornamentik and an article that Schenker would praise him for in a letter from 1930). His dissertation under Guido Adler was a study of sonata form in Franz Schubert. Much of Salzer's work with tonal music in the Salzer Papers was most likely intended for the classroom or for his pedagogical texts. However, there are also significant analytic studies of tonal music, especially of variations (see below). Salzer's interest in the history of tonality from a Schenkerian perspective was also an ubiquitous interest throughout his life. This was certainly due to his combined training as a musicologist and music theorist. His first book, Sinn und Wesen der abendländischen Mehrstimmigkeit, explored the development of Western polyphony from the 11th century through 16th century. Many of these same ideas reappear—albeit in a condensed and slightly altered form—in Structural Hearing and Counterpoint in Composition. In The Music Forum vol. 1 Salzer would publish another extended monograph on the development of Western polyphony, this time with a focus on the early work of Aquitanian polyphony and the Notre-Dame School. This early period of polyphony in fact became a focus of Salzer's work in the history of tonality. In the Salzer Papers there are a number of unpublished essays and analyses/notes from a number of sources: the Magnus Liber, and the Bamberg, Montpellier and Las Huelgas codices, in addition to contemporaneous sources on medieval music, such as Friedrich Ludwig, Marius Schneider, Heinrich Husman, William Waite, Pierre Aubry, and others. This interest in the history of tonality continued up to Salzer's last publication, an analysis of a Monteverdi madrigal in Aspects of Schenkerian Theory. In his later years, Salzer was involved in the analysis of variations. This project is heavily represented in the Salzer Papers, most likely due to its temporal proximity to Salzer's death. However, Salzer's only published work on variations appears in vol. 5 of The Music Forum, "The Variation Movement of Mozart's Divertimento K. 563." The Papers include several variations projects, notably Beethoven's Diabelli Variations, J.S. Bach's Goldberg Variations, Brahms's Symphony no. 4 (Finale), and Mozart's Piano Concerto in c minor, K. 491 (Finale). Salzer had also worked extensively on an analysis of J.S. Bach's Chaconne in d minor for solo violin for an essay in The Music Forum, which is currently in the possession of the journal. Salzer must have had an interest in variations dating back at least to the 1940's (if not earlier), since he wrote a published review of a book on variations in the Journal of American Musicological Society in 1949. Another aspect of Salzer's work concerned concert programming and musical criticism. Salzer's work with concert programming and musical criticism. Salzer only published one article on this subject, "Historical Aspects of Concert Programming," but wrote a number of other essays such as "Concert Programs in Historical Perspective," "Musical Criticism and Public Opinion," and "Program Building in Historical Perspective," all contained in the Salzer Papers. Collection of manuscripts Salzer was also a collector of rare items and manuscripts. His most highly valued item, an autograph manuscript of Beethoven's Cello Sonata, op. 69, was bequeathed to him by the Wittgenstein family. Salzer invited Lewis Lockwood, a noted Beethoven scholar, to publish a detailed essay on the manuscript, which appeared in vol. 2 of The Music Forum, and won the the American Musicological Society's Alfred Einstein award in 1971. Another item of importance was the autograph manuscript of Mozart's Rondo for Piano, K. 494. Salzer believed (like Schenker) in the importance of manuscript studies in order to gain a more intimate understanding of musical composition. Salzer inherited this interest in manuscripts from the Wittgenstein family, which owned a number of original manuscripts. In addition to original musical manuscripts, Salzer owned a number of other manuscripts: letters, first edition scores, portraits and engravings, etc. A few of these items exist as photocopies in the Salzer Papers (an autographed letter from Joseph Haydn, for example), in addition to some original items (a postcard from Peter Altenberg and a first edition score of C.P.E. Bach) A citation for the full catalogue of The Salzer Collection published by Sotheby's appears at the end of this essay. After Salzer's death, his wife Hedwig auctioned off the Salzer Collection through Sotheby's in 1990. Conclusion Salzer health began to suffer in 1981; he died on August 12, 1986. His wife Hedwig received an honorary doctorate from the Mannes College of Music in 1987. Upon her death on February 9, 2000, Salzer's papers were donated to the Music Division of The New York Public Library for the Performing Arts. Scope and Content Note

The Salzer Papers are divided into two large series: 1) The Felix Salzer Papers; 2) The Heinrich Schenker Nachlass. The Felix Salzer Papers divide into 7 subseries: Analyses, Academic Work, Correspondence, Personal Materials, Scores owned by Salzer, Compositions of Hans Weisse, and Books owned by Salzer. Of non-musical interest, the Salzer Papers also contain the memoirs of Hermine Wittgenstein, given to Salzer by her, and the collected letters of Ludwig Wittgenstein. The Schenker Nachlass includes four "Mappe" (using Jeanette Schenker's terminology), which corresponds to the list she made in 1935 after Heinrich Schenker's death. The series divides into 6 subseries, and contains notes and essays on thoroughbass (Mappe 6), analyses from Schenker's 1931-34 seminar (Mappe 28), and miscellaneous notes and analyses (Mappen 11, 11a-i, 27, and 29).

Arrangement: The Felix Salzer Papers are organized in the following series: Series 1: Felix Salzer Papers, 1922-1995 Series 2: Heinrich Schenker Nachlass, 1910-1933

Series 1: Felix Salzer Papers 1922-1995

The Felix Salzer Papers are contained in 50 boxes, and are divided into seven sub-series: 1) Music analyses; 2) Academic work; 3) Correspondence; 4) Personal and miscellaneous materials; 5) Musical scores owned by Salzer; 6) Musical compositions of Hans Weisse; 7) Books owned and annotated by Salzer. By far the largest sub-series is the first, "Music Analyses," which comprises just over half of the Salzer Papers.

Sub-series 1: Music Analyses ca. 1950-1981

This sub-series is divided into five parts, lettered a-e: 1a Analyses of music before 1700; 1b Analyses of music after 1700; 1c Analyses of Variations; 1d Analyses for Counterpoint in Composition, a 1969 textbook co-authored with Carl Schachter; 1e Analyses by students and colleagues of Salzer. Within each category analyses are arranged in alphabetical order according to the composer's or collection's name. The division of categories reflects both Salzer's analytic interests and the individual projects with which he was concerned throughout his life.

Many folders in this sub-series contain analyses that are not intact, as the tape Salzer used to bind pieces of paper together is falling off. Photocopies have been made where necessary in order to preserve the original graph. In addition, Salzer made duplicates of certain analyses, which have in many cases been placed in a separate folder and marked "duplicate."

1a) Music before 1700

The analyses in sub-series 1a are drawn mainly from Medieval repertoire, such as the Bamberg Codex, the Magnus Liber, and the Montpellier codex, in addition to other monuments and collected works from his time, such as Historical Anthology of Music. There are also a few analyses of works from the Renaissance, including Gesualdo, Cabezón, and Palestrina. These analyses were either used for the text Counterpoint in Composition, or for some other unidentified purpose.

Sub-series 3: Correspondence 1897-1995

This sub-series contains all personal and professional correspondence contained within the Salzer Papers, in addition to correspondence between others. The sub-series is divided into three parts: 3a) Salzer's correspondence around a topic; 3b) Salzer's correspondence with individuals or institutions; 3c) Correspondence between others. No attempt has been made to divide letters to or from Salzer, as most of the letters are to Salzer, and only a few from him (as drafts). Therefore, all correspondence between Salzer and another are put into a single folder.

3a) Salzer correspondence by topic

Sub-series 3a contains correspondence pertaining to the Mannes College of Music; Queens College; Structural Hearing; Der Dreiklang; family correspondence (Salzer, Wittgenstein, and extended family); Salzer's ownership of manuscripts; a proposed publication of a lecture; and correspondence with a group of theorists put in one folder by Salzer containing letters by Oswald Jonas, Ernst Oster, Victor Hammer, Franz Lichtenegger, and Michael Kassler.

Series 2: Heinrich Schenker Nachlass 1910-1933

The following series contains a portion of the Heinrich Schenker Nachlass, purchased by Salzer from Jeanette Schenker in 1936, and comprises seven boxes (the original list of items and agreement between Salzer and J. Schenker can be found in Box 40, Fol. 2). The original German words "Nachlass" and "Mappe" have been retained to describe the contents of the papers. "Nachlass" refers to all the papers of Schenker, while "Mappe" refers to each individual file from the collection. Items in the Schenker Nachlass have been kept in the original order in which they were found, unless otherwise noted. The numbering of each item follows a combination of the original system used by Jeanette Schenker and the system used in the Oster Collection, which itemizes each item in the Papers, both Recto and Verso sides. For example, "6/11" Recto refers to the front side of the 11th item in Mappe 6.

In order to avoid terminological confusion, the word "Sketch" has been used as a catch-all term for any musico-analytic mark. "Sketch" as a singular noun refers to a single analytical remark on a piece of paper (whether a single bar or an entire movement), and "Sketches" as a plural noun refers to multiple musical remarks on a piece of paper. "In levels" refers to the special type of sketch known as an Urlinie-Tafel. Mappe 26, an analysis of a Schubert Ländler, was believed to be in the estate of Felix Salzer. On the list owned by Ernst Oster (in the Oster Collection), Oster crosses out Mappe 26 and writes "s[iehe] 11d." This item is located in Mappe 11d/8, Box 54, Fol. 6.

Sub-series 1: Study of thoroughbass, analyses of J.S. Bach, miscellaneous notes (Mappe 6)

The bulk of this sub-series contains Schenker's study of thoroughbass, including notes, drafts, and books. The collected books include C.P.E. Bach's Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen, and what Schenker uniquely called J.S. Bach's "Generalbassbüchlein." This latter work was taken from vol. 2 of Philipp Spitta's Johann Sebastian Bach, Appendix B, XII, pp. 913-960 (1st edition of vol. 2, 1880), and bound by Schenker as a single text. Schenker's word "Generalbassbüchlein" has been retained throughout to identify this work. The sub-series also contains two handwritten drafts of texts by Schenker, "Von der Stimmführung des Generalbasses" and "Kommentar zu Ph. E. Bachs Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen." The former text was originally intended by Schenker to be included in an earlier version of Der freie Satz, which itself was originally part of vol. 2 of Schenker's Kontrapunkt. The latter text was preparatory work for the former. Please refer to Appendix 1 of the Oster Collection, "An early version of Der freie Satz." Additional items from Schenker's study of thoroughbass can be found in Box 40, Fol 27, which Salzer included with Hans Weisse's correspondence with Schenker. Other items in this sub-series are analyses of J.S. Bach's Geistlicher Lieder and miscellaneous notes. The Oster Collection currently houses one item from Mappe 6, a work on thoroughbass by Moriz Violin, "Über das sogenannte Continuo: Ein Beitrag zur Lösung des Problems," Wien: Universal ed., 1911, and contains two typescripts by Ernst Oster of Schenker's "Von der Stimmführung des Generalbasses" and his "Kommentar zu Ph. E. Bachs Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen."

Notes on C.P.E. Bach's Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen

Throughout his notes on C.P.E. Bach, Schenker uses a particular labeling system, following the original German edition of the treatise. The Roman numeral refers to the chapter, all in the "Zweite Teil," followed by either one or two different arabic numerals. The arabic numbers refer either to the segment, or "Abschnitt," of which there are at most two within a chapter; the second number refers to the section, either within the chapter or within the segment within the chapter. The symbol "$" is used ubiquitously to refer to the section; otherwise, it refers to the segment. For example, "VI/2, §2" refers to "chapter 6, segment 2, section 2." In many cases Schenker's markings are directly quoted, and are put in quotation marks. "S" refers to "Seite," or page number in the German edition. "Kap." refers to "Kapitel," or chapter. In other cases, Schenker labels the section based on the topic, such as figured bass numerals "5/3" or "6/4," etc.

Sub-series 5: Analyses for the Fünf Urlinie-Tafeln, vol. 2 (Mappe 28)

This sub-series contains analyses by Schenker and his students, which were part of Schenker's seminar between 1931-1934. It includes analyses of Haydn's Sonata in Eb major, Hob. XVI/49; Beethoven, Sonata in c# minor, op. 27, no. 2; Mozart, Fantasie in d minor, K. 397; Chopin, Etude in E major, op. 10, no. 3; Brahms, Auf dem Kirchhofe, op. 105, no. 4; Brahms, Paganini Variations, op. 35. These analyses, with the exception of the Haydn, were intended to be published as a second volume of the Fünf Urlinie Tafeln of 1932, although the project never came to fruition. See Box 40, Fol. 3 for a copy of the plan. The original does not survive.
