Creator History

Irving Kolodin was born in February 21, 1908 in New York City. He was the son of Benjamin and Leah (Geller) Kolodin. After completing his high school education in Newark, New Jersey and a year in Extension Courses at Columbia University, in 1926 Kolodin studied at the Institute of Musical Art, which later became part of the Juilliard School. He began working as an instructor at the same institution from 1929 until 1931, when he got his first assignment as music critic at the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. Soon after, in 1932, Kolodin joined the staff at The New York Sun under W. J. Henderson. He remained with The New York Sun until it was merged with the New York World-Telegram in 1950, advancing from assistant critic to music editor. Kolodin's longest employer was the Saturday Review of Literature. In 1947 he began there as the editor of a monthly Recordings section, moving on to music reviews and feature articles, as well as his most popular and long-lasting column, Music to My Ears. In addition, he contributed to many other magazines and newspapers, including Newsday, and the New York Herald Tribune. Although the majority of Kolodin's writings focus on classical music and opera, his articles cover a rich variety of subjects, ranging from jazz and popular music to dance. Kolodin was one of the first to focus on the newly emerging recorded music, following its development from phonograph records to compact discs. He wrote several articles on the subject, maintained relevant columns in both The New York Sun and the Saturday Review, and in 1941 published A Guide to Recorded Music, with subsequent revisions through 1951. He was also the author of Mozart on Records (1942), The Saturday Review Home Book of Recorded Music and Sound Reproduction (1952 and revised in 1956), and Orchestral Music (1955), part of a three-volume survey of long-playing recordings published by Alfred Knopf, Inc. Above all, Kolodin became famous for his authoritative works on the history of the Metropolitan Opera. The Metropolitan Opera: 1883-1935, published in 1936, was followed by a second edition, titled The Story of the Metropolitan Opera, 1883-1950: A Candid History (1953). It was further updated in 1966 and towards the end of his life he was working on a new edition in celebration of the Metropolitan Opera's centennial, titled The Metropolitan Opera: Centennial Edition, 1883-1984. Other books by Kolodin include The Continuity of Music: A History of Influence (1969), The Interior Beethoven: A Biography of the Music (1975), The Opera Omnibus: Four Centuries of Critical Give and Take (1976), and In Quest of Music: A Journey in Time (1980). During the 1950s Kolodin collaborated with RCA Victor in the preparation of several albums, including a Critic's Choice album and a five-record set titled 50 Years of Great Operatic Singing. He also wrote program notes for the New York Philharmonic from 1953 to 1958, and in 1970 he was part of the White House Record Library Commission, a committee entrusted with building the record collection of the Presidential Library. Kolodin was responsible for the classical section. In addition to his writings, Kolodin also was a faculty member at the Juilliard School from 1968 to 1986, teaching courses on the Music of Mahler and Music Criticism. Kolodin died in 1987 in New York, after suffering a stroke in the previous year.

Scope and Content Note

The Irving Kolodin Papers contain correspondence, diaries and daybooks, scores, drafts and galley proofs, research notes, clippings, press kits and press releases, photographs, scrapbooks, lecture notes and other teaching material, financial papers, original artwork and oversized material, documenting the career of Irving Kolodin, music critic, author and teacher at the Juilliard School. The collection dates from 1844 to 1986. Although Kolodin was born in 1908 and his own material dates from 1915 to 1986, the collection includes a substantial amount of earlier papers related to his mentor, W. J. Henderson, and his close friend, Alfred Knopf, as well as research material that predates Kolodin's lifetime. Kolodin's correspondence consists of personal and professional correspondence with personalities in the music, as well as the publishing world. It includes contracts, negotiations and scholarly collaboration related to a wide range of subjects on which Kolodin wrote. There are also letters from the various artists Kolodin reviewed in his articles, and letters by readers. This series also includes correspondence of Alfred Knopf with various individuals other than Kolodin. The largest series in this collection is Kolodin's writings, which include drafts, galley proofs or copies of his articles and several but not all of his books, both published and unpublished. This series also includes a substantial number of research notes kept by Kolodin, as well as interview transcripts, programs, clippings, press kits and other publicity material, scholarly periodicals and article imprints. Among the books represented here are The Continuity of Music: A History of Influence (1969), The Interior Beethoven: A Biography of the Music (1975), In Quest of Music: A Journey in Time (1980), and ample material for the various editions of his history of the Metropolitan Opera, including the nearly complete The Metropolitan Opera: Centennial Edition, 1966-1984. There is also material for some of the books Kolodin never completed or published. The collection contains a small number of annotated published and manuscript scores. The majority of these scores were used for musical examples in Kolodin's books, or for teaching. There is also a small number of personal papers, noteworthy among which are Kolodin's diary entries, documenting his trips to Europe, Japan and Australia, as well as his personal insights on his encounters with various personalities in the music world. Teaching material includes lecture notes, course syllabi, reading materials, song lyrics and scores for musical examples, tests, quizzes, and examination booklets for the two courses that Kolodin taught at the Juilliard School, The Music of Mahler, and Criticism of Music. The photographs found in this collection include personal and publicity photographs of the wide range of individuals featured in Kolodin's writings. Several are inscribed to Kolodin. There are also photographs of Kolodin, alone or with colleagues and personalities with whom he maintained personal relations. The scrapbooks found in this collection were created by W. J. Henderson and Kolodin. Fashioned in the same way, the scrapbooks contain clippings of the two men's reviews, as well as of their colleagues at The New York Sun and other publications. Oversized materials include artwork, such as sketches, caricatures and lithographs, as well as photographs, galley proofs, programs, record jackets and research materials used in Kolodin's various writings.

Container List

Series I: Correspondence 1912 - 1986, undated (9 boxes)

This series contains correspondence with Irving Kolodin's colleagues and friends, documenting his personal and professional life as music critic, author and teacher. The letters reflect Kolodin's professional activities, and the relations and friendships that he formed during his career as music critic with opera singers, musicians and composers. In addition, Kolodin's research brought him into contact with music scholars, publishers, and decision-makers in the world of opera. There are also letters from the various artists Kolodin reviewed in his articles and by readers with praise or opposing views on his opinions. Noteworthy among the correspondents for their close ties with Kolodin are opera singers Maria Callas and Mary Costa. This series also includes a considerable number of Alfred Knopf's correspondence with Kolodin and several other individuals, such as Joseph Hergesheimer, H. L. Mencken, and Willa Cather.

Series III: Writings 1885 - 1987, undated (62 boxes)

This series is divided in three sub-series: Books, containing drafts and research materials related to his books; General research, containing research materials on broad subjects, as well as notepads with notes on more than one subject; and Subject files, containing material related to Kolodin's articles and specific subjects on which he wrote.

Alphabetical

Sub - series 1: Books 1901 - 1986, undated (35 boxes)

This sub-series contains annotated drafts, outlines, revision notes, galley proofs, book reviews, illustration lists, musical examples, research notes and other research materials such as book excerpts and articles, interview transcripts programs, clippings, press kits and press releases used in Kolodin's books. This material relates to several but not all of his books, published and unpublished. Among the books represented here are The Continuity of Music: A History of Influence (1969), The Interior Beethoven: A Biography of the Music (1975), In Quest of Music: A Journey in Time (1980), and ample material for the various editions of his history of the Metropolitan Opera, including the nearly complete The Metropolitan Opera: Centennial Edition, 1966-1984. There is also material for some of the books Kolodin never completed or published, such as Chorley at Large, Fifty Years of Music in New York, a significant amount of material for the history of the Juilliard School, tentatively titled The Several Juilliards (And How They Flourished); and for a biography of Alfred Knopf. Of interest are Kolodin's diary entries, included in the research material for The Metropolitan Opera and the history of Juilliard, as well as several pages from Alfred Knopf's diaries, found among the research material for his biography.

Sub - series 3: Subject files 1885 - 1986, undated (16 boxes)

This sub-series contains material related to Kolodin's articles and other writings, other than his books. It includes copies of the articles themselves, annotated drafts or galleys, notes from conferences and competitions in which Kolodin participated as a speaker or judge, and research materials such as notes, clippings, and press kits. As several subjects are covered in more than one article, this sub-series is organized by subject, such as individuals, institutions, opera productions, or recorded music. These files include biographical notes, clippings, research notes, and annotated article drafts or copies of articles by Kolodin and others. This sub-series also includes research materials related to W. J. Henderson, such as subject indexes to contents of Henderson's scrapbooks prepared by Kolodin and index cards prepared by others, and writings about and by Henderson.

Series IV: Teaching material 1914 - 1985, undated (6 boxes)

This series contains lecture notes, course syllabi, reading materials, song lyrics and scores for musical examples, tests, quizzes, and examination booklets for the two courses that Kolodin taught at the Juilliard School, The Music of Mahler, and Criticism of Music. In particular his lecture notes are very detailed, with long texts for each class meeting written in full prose that recreates the contents of each class in a lively manner. There is also a course proposal for Criticism of Music, with comments and amendments for the future after the first year the course was taught.

Series VI: Photographs 1900 - 1986, undated (9 boxes)

This series contains mostly black and white, personal and promotional photographs of composers, conductors, musicians, opera singers, and music scholars, as well as performance photographs from productions at the Metropolitan Opera and other institutions. Several are inscribed to Kolodin, while some have been mounted on frames next to personal notes or letters. There are also personal and publicity photographs of Kolodin, alone as well as with colleagues and personalities with whom he maintained personal relations. Many of the photographs in this collection appear to have been intended for use in support of Kolodin's various articles and books. Some of the photographs from the collection had been removed before processing and integrated into the Music Division's general Iconography files.
