Creator History

Henry Cowell (3/11/1897 - 12/10/1965) was an American composer of symphonic and chamber music. He studied violin with Henry Holmes, and composition with E.G. Strickland and Wallace Sabin at the University of California in Berkeley. He also studied with Walter Damrosch at the Institute of Musical Art in New York, and with Charles Seeger. Cowell became the first American composer to visit Russia in 1928, after which, he studied ethnomusicology with Erich von Hornbostel in Berlin as a Guggenheim fellow. These pursuits led him toward extensive study of ethnic musical materials. Cowell made great use of tone clusters. He systematized the clusters as harmonic amplifications of tonal chords, and devised logical notation for them. He ultimately applied tone clusters to compositions for instrumental works (in addition to piano works), and also used them in many of his symphonic works.

Custodial History

The collection was donated by Sidney Cowell.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of noncommercial recordings collected by Henry Cowell reflecting varied interests. It includes the works of Cowell, as well as that of other composers such as John J. Becker, Paul Hindemith, and Igor Stravinsky, and folk and world music from such places as Africa, India, Morocco, and Turkey. Also included are lectures, interviews and demonstrations by/with Cowell.

Arrangement: The collection is arranged into four series: Series I. Field recordings of world music Series II. Henry Cowell compositions Series III. Other Cowell material Series IV. Works by other composers

Series II: Henry Cowell compositions 1939-1986

The series contains recordings of various Cowell compositions. If a recording includes works by Cowell as well as the works of other composers, it will be found in this series. Therefore, it is possible to find works by composers other than Cowell in this series. Many items in this series are not attributed to any date. However, amongst those which are dated, the date span is 1939-1986.

The series is arranged alphabetically by composer or performer, or title, and chronologically.
