Summary

Creator: Marshall, Kenneth, 1925-1971

Title: Kenneth Marshall Papers

Date: 1951-1977

Size: 5 linear feet

Abstract: The Kenneth Marshall Papers document his career as an administrator for several federally funded urban youth group programs and related endeavors. The bulk of the collection contains New York City Youth Board process records (accounts of interaction with and observations of street gangs) for 1951-1953. Also included are the process records of a co-worker, Daniel Belknap, and a monograph published by the N.Y.C. Youth Board entitled "Reaching the Fighting Gang" (1960). There are files from his work with HARYOU, the proposal and other reports for the Mobilization for Youth program, papers on juvenile delinquency, education and social work issues, two drafts of his dissertation pertaining to street gangs, in addition to publications from Metropolitan Applied Research Center, and files and publications from his work with AT&T. Of particular interest are Marshall's files for the National Black Economic Development Conference (1969) and the related Black Manifesto. Marshall drafted a proposal for the initiation of the Black Manifesto's program.

Access: Advance notice required.

Preferred citation: Kenneth Marshall Papers, Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, The New York Public Library

Creator History
Kenneth Marshall was program director of HARYOU, a federally funded antipoverty agency in Central Harlem and served as executive director of Paterson, New Jersey's Task Force antipoverty program. Born in Brooklyn, New York, Marshall received his Bachelor of Arts degree from City College in 1949 after serving with the Air Force in World War II. He was awarded a Master's degree in psychology from City College and one in social work from Columbia University. He received a doctorate in 1969 from New York University.
Marshall began his career as a street worker for the New York City Youth Board in the 1950's, and dealt with a number of fighting youth gangs, using this experience as the basis for his doctoral dissertation. At the Columbia University School of Social Work, Dr. Marshall was a research assistant and from 1961-1964 an assistant professor. In collaboration with others, he helped develop the plan for Mobilization for Youth.

In 1962 Marshall became program director of HARYOU where his contribution on the programmatic aspects of community involvement became a primary influence on the plan. From 1955-1966 he was executive director of the Task Force of Paterson, New Jersey's antipoverty program in which he implemented the plan for neighborhood boards that he had developed for Haryou. In 1967 Marshall became vice president for community affairs of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center, where he later was a Presidential Fellow. In 1970 he began a position as project chairman for the department of environmental research and development of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company.

Scope and Content Note
The Kenneth Marshall Papers document his career as an administrator for several federally funded urban youth group programs and related endeavors. The bulk of the collection contains New York City Youth Board process records (accounts of interaction with and observations of street gangs) for 1951-1953. Also included are the process records of a co-worker, Daniel Belknap, and a monograph published by the N.Y.C. Youth Board entitled "Reaching the Fighting Gang" (1960). There are files from his work with HARYOU, the proposal and other reports for the Mobilization for Youth program, papers on juvenile delinquency, education and social work issues, two drafts of his dissertation pertaining to street gangs, in addition to publications from Metropolitan Applied Research Center, and files and publications from his work with AT&T. Of particular interest are Marshall's files for the National Black Economic Development Conference (1969) and the related Black Manifesto. Marshall drafted a proposal for the initiation of the Black Manifesto's program.

Key Terms

Subjects
African American families
African American government executives -- New York (State) -- New York
African American youth -- New York (State) -- New York
African Americans -- Education -- New York (State) -- New York
African Americans -- New York (State) -- New York -- Social conditions
Juvenile delinquents -- New York (State) -- New York
Poverty -- Research -- New York (State) -- New York
Social work with African Americans -- New York (State) -- New York
Social work with youth -- New York (State) -- New York
Urban youth -- New York (State) -- New York

Geographic Names
African Americans -- Employment -- New York (State) -- New York

Titles
Schomburg NEH Automated Access to Special Collections Project
Names
Marshall, Kenneth, 1925-1971
Belknap, Daniel
American Telephone and Telegraph Company
HARYOU (Organization)
Metropolitan Applied Research Center
Mobilization for Youth
National Black Economic Development Conference
New York City Youth Board