Creator History

Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951), was a prominent African American author of the early 20th century, and more notably the first African American filmmaker. Micheaux was born in Metropolis, Illinois on January 2, 1884. He was one of thirteen children and the son of Calvin S. and Belle Michaux. Micheaux later added the “e” to his name. He lived in Chicago, Illinois; Harlem New York; and finally in Montclair, New Jersey. Micheaux was married three times. His first wife was Orlean McCracken; his second wife was Sarah Rutledge; and his third wife was Alice B. Russell, to whom he was married to until the time of his death. Oscar Micheaux died in 1951 in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Before becoming an author, film director and independent producer, Micheaux was briefly a Pullman Porter and a farmer in Gregory County, South Dakota. After some success as a homesteader on the Rosebud Indian Reservation, a three year drought destroyed his crops. The reverse of his success as a farmer followed by what he has referenced as “peculiar circumstances” changed the course of his life, and he began writing and publishing.

Micheaux's life endeavors and experiences inspired his early works. His first book, The Conquest: The Story of a Negro Homesteader (1913) is recognized as his autobiography and reworked into his most famous novel The Homesteader (1917). Through his Book Supply Company in Harlem, Micheaux self-published many of his novels such as The Wind from Nowhere (1941); The Case of Mrs. Wingate (1944); The Story of Dorothy Stanfield (1946), and The Masquerade (1947).

Micheaux's first film, The Homesteader, was released in 1919 and was adapted from his novel of the same name. It was the first film to include an all-black cast. As an independent filmmaker of Micheaux Pictures Corporation, founded in 1918, Micheaux is credited with 44 films between 1919 and 1948, including his first sound film The Exile (1931); Temptation (1935); God's Stepchildren (1938); Lying Lips (1939); The Notorious Elinor Lee (1940), and his final film The Betrayal (1948), which was adapted from his novel, The Wind from Nowhere. Micheaux put a great deal of effort and finances into the making of this film. The premier was held at the historically white Mansfield Theater on Broadway in New York City, which was a success in itself. Micheaux's race films, musicals, comedies, westerns, romances, and gangster films included themes such as African Americans passing for white, interracial marriage, and legal injustices. The roles played by African Americans in his films were a far cry from the stereotypical "Uncle Toms" and "Mammy" portrayals viewers were used to seeing during the early 20th century. Black actors in Micheaux's films played the roles of doctors, businessman, detectives, and lawyers. However, he did receive criticism for giving lead roles to light-skinned African American actors. Nevertheless, his movies challenged the dominant society and provided a window into black life and the African American perspective on race.

Scope and Content Note

These papers largely chronicle the last several decades of Oscar Micheaux's professional life as an author and his work as America's first Black filmmaker (1871-1951, bulk dates 1935-1951). The collection primarily consists of business records that include professional correspondence to and from Micheaux Pictures Corporation and his publishing company, Book Supply Company in Harlem of New York City. Correspondence are with film and filmmaking supply houses, theaters, film distributors, public relations firms, and legal documents regarding lawsuits against Micheaux. Noteworthy in the Writings series are materials that document the transformation of the book Wind From Nowhere to the film The Betrayal. Also included are clippings and ephemeral related to some of his works such as the Case of Mrs. Wingate. There is a synopsis for this same title. The Film series includes scenarios and dialogue for films such as God's Stepchildren, Lying Lips, and Notorious Elinor Lee.

Personal papers 1910 - 1951 [bulk 1949 - 1951]
There is a limited amount Oscar Micheaux personal papers. However, there are biographical documents such as a census form, with his signature that detail where he lived throughout his life and to whom he was married. Also included is a questionnaire for an entry in Who's Who Among American Negroes and a portion of that details his curriculum vitae, which lists his past and present positions at the time and a future project. There is very little personal correspondence from Micheaux, but a welcomed addition to this series are the papers of his wife Alice B. Micheaux (Alice B. Russell) (1910-1951), mostly prior to her marrying Micheaux.
Arranged into three sub-series: (I) Biographical; (II) Correspondence; and (III) Alice B. Micheaux (Alice B. Russell).

b. 1 f. 1 Biographical 1949 - 1951
There are only a few biographical documents, however they provide a substantial amount of information about Micheaux's life, such as where he lived throughout his life and the jobs he held.

Correspondence
There is a minimal amount of personal correspondence in this sub-series. However, there are documents that provide some insight on Micheaux's death and some of the financial burden that was imposed on his wife, Alice B. Micheaux.

b. 1 f. 2 1939
b. 1 f. 3 1949 - 1951
Alice B. Micheaux (Alice B. Russell) 1910 - 1951
Some of the documents in this sub-series date from before her marriage to Oscar Micheaux. It includes 2 scrapbooks of Alice's time as a "Dramatic Soprano." One of the scrapbooks includes the name Jack Mabey on the cover, but the relationship is not known. There are books of sheet music, a cookbook, and correspondence (very little) after her husband's death.

Business records 1871 - 1951 [bulk 1936 - 1951]
The Business records offer insight into Micheaux as an entrepreneur and his business strategies. There is significant correspondence in this series (1936-1951) that is arranged chronologically. Correspondence to and from Book Supply Company and Micheaux Pictures Corporation, are with film and filmmaking supply houses, theaters, film distributors, public relations firms, and attorneys. He kept copies of his replies to a great deal of the correspondence, so there are two sides to a conversation in a number of cases. The Contracts and Permits sub-series consists mainly of contracts with theater houses such as the Harlem Theater in Texas; Lee Theatre in Virginia; and the Lightman Theatre in Washington (1936-1949, bulk 1936-1939). Financial records, 1939-1951, consist of mainly bank records, which also includes bank records for Albert Williams. It is not apparent who Albert Williams is and how he is related to Micheaux, if at all. There are also receipts for printing services and order forms for his books from people all over the country. The Miscellaneous sub-series (1871-1950, bulk 1936-1949), consists of books, pamphlets and programs, clippings of book reviews, handwritten notes, lists of venues, and letterhead supplies for his two companies, Book Supply Company and Micheaux Pictures Corporation. There are books on composers and theater listings, which are likely related to his work as a filmmaker. There are also commencement programs from Columbia University during 1936 and 1938.
Arranged into four sub-series: (I) Correspondence; (II) Contracts and Permits; (III) Financial; and (IV) Miscellaneous.

Correspondence are with film and filmmaking supply houses, theaters, film distributors, public relations firms, and lawsuits against Micheaux. Micheaux kept copies of replies to a great deal of the correspondence. There are two sides to a conversation in a number of cases.

Contracts and Permits 1936 - 1949 [bulk 1936 - 1939]
This series mainly consists of contracts with theaters showing Micheaux's films from 1936-1937 and 1949. These films include The Darktown Revue, 1931; Harlem after Midnight, 1934; Murder in Harlem, 1935; Temptation, 1935; Underworld, 1937; and God's Stepchildren, 1938. There are contracts that include films Ten Minutes to Kill and Doomsday, however, the contract may be referring to Micheaux's film Ten Minutes to Live, 1932. Also important to note, Doomsday is not listed in Micheaux's filmography.
