Creator History

Emeline Clark Roche (1902-1995) was a set and costume designer, who, at various stages of her career, was involved in other aspects of theatrical production including lighting design and stock company management. Ms. Roche also worked as a technical designer for New York City stage, television and stock productions, as well as a designer of commercial productions. Emeline Roche was born on October 3, 1902. She studied at the Art Students League, the New York School of Fine Arts, and with Norman Bel Geddes, later continuing on his staff for four years as an assistant draftsman. During 1935-36, she served on the faculty of the Florence Cane School of Art. Beginning in the late 1920s until 1939, she was involved with the Actor-Managers, Inc. run by Helen Arthur, Executive Director, Agnes Morgan, Aline Bernstein and Clara A. Weiss. She staged stock productions for that organization at the Newport Casino Theatre and Ann Arbor, among other venues. She was the stage manager for the touring companies of Ruth Draper and Angna Enters. Ms. Roche also worked as a technical supervisor for Aline Bernstein and Robert Edmond Jones. During the 1930s and 1940s she was a technical assistant and costume designer for Herman Shumlin, Gilbert Miller, Charles Frohman, Inc. and the Theatre Guild, designing Broadway productions including Grand Hotel, State of the Union, Animal Kingdom and The Late Christopher Bean. During World War II, Emeline Roche contributed her time and talents to the Stage Door Canteen and was the co-designer of the set for the original canteen. She served on the Executive Committee of the American Theatre Wing (ATW) War Service Inc. She also worked as an army aircraft spotter. She joined the United Scenic Artists, Local 829, in 1927, and worked as a volunteer with the union from that time until her death in 1995. From 1947-1954, she served as recording secretary of the union and corresponded with designers including Jo Mielziner. After the war, she assisted Lee Simonson, designing the setting for the Metropolitan Opera's 1947-48 production of the Ringcycle. From 1948 until 1954 she served as the costume designer for New York City Center Drama Productions. Ms. Roche designed the costumes for the ANTA annual benefit at the Ziegfeld Theatre from 1949 to 1950 and again in 1955. She also served as technical designer for the television show the Kate Smith Hour, which ran until October 1951, and worked as a designer of exhibitions and pageants for corporations. Ms. Roche met Jane Cowl in 1938 when Ms. Cowl was an actor in a stock production of Rain from Heaven at Ann Arbor. They later both served on the Executive Committee of the American Theatre Wing during World War II and became personal friends. As a result, Ms. Roche became involved with some of Ms. Cowl's other closest associates, including Jane Murfin, the co-author of four of her productions. After Jane Cowl's death in 1950, Roche organized the memorial in her honor and later purchased some of her property at auction in 1952. Emeline Roche died on October 20, 1995 at the age of 93. Jane Cowl (1883-1950), actor and author, was born Grace Bailey in Boston on December 14, 1883. According to a notation in the files, her date of birth was found in the Boston city records. She was the daughter of Grace and Charles A. Bailey. The family moved to New York City when she was three years old. She began her career as an actor with David Belasco, debuting in the Belasco Theatre on December 10, 1903 as an extra in Sweet Kitty Bellairs, and quickly rose to starring roles with his company. In 1912, she scored a major success as Mary Turner in Within the Law. She also appeared in the early silent movie The Spreading Dawn in 1917. Ms. Cowl later collaborated with Jane Murfin (Crisp) to write and appear in four plays including Lilac Time (1917), Smilin' Through, first produced in New York in 1919, Information Please and Daybreak. She was the author of the plays The Jealous Moon and Hervey House. Ms. Cowl was acclaimed for her Shakespearean roles. She was considered the greatest Juliet in American theater, playing a record-breaking number of performances during the 1922-1923 season. During the 1920s Jane Cowl formed her own production company, directing and starring in productions including Romeo and Juliet. Her career also took her to London where she appeared in Noel Coward's Easy Virtue and other productions. Ms. Cowl lectured and wrote on theatrical and other topics. In the 1940s she had a radio program on WOR. During World War I she was active in war relief and in World War II she was the co-chair of the Stage Door Canteen Committee and served on the Board of Directors of the American Theatre Wing. She married Adolph Klauber, a New York Times drama critic and theatrical producer, on June 19, 1906. He died in 1933. At the end of her 47 year theatrical career, she moved to Hollywood and appeared in films including Once More My Darling, released in 1949 and her last film, Payment on Demand, released in 1951 after her death. Jane Cowl died in Santa Monica, California on June 22, 1950.

Custodial History

The Emeline Clark Roche Collection was donated to the Billy Rose Theatre Division of the New York Public Library for the Performing Arts in 1996 by her executor and friend Henry Grady. The collection was conserved, re-housed and processed in 1996 and 1997. Prior to her death, Ms. Roche had donated portions of her collection of Jane Cowl materials to the Library. These papers which had been cataloged in MWEZ and the Library's Cage files were reorganized and processed with her own collection to form the Jane Cowl Papers within the Emeline Roche Collection. The Manuscripts Division of the New York Public Library holds 2 boxes of additional Jane Cowl materials.

Scope and Content Note

The Emeline Roche Collection (1815-1988) consists of the Emeline Roche Papers (1815-1988) and the Jane Cowl Papers (1884-1949). The collection came in two installments: first after 1950 from Emeline Roche, the rest after her death from her executor and friend, Henry Grady. The Roche Papers include correspondence, manuscripts, contracts, financial records, personal papers, photographs, scrapbooks, clippings and memorabilia, set, costume and lighting designs, drawings and renderings, original artwork and extensive research files. The largest part of the Roche Papers consists of professional work files and related production designs and research materials. There are almost no personal materials such as biographical documents, personal papers, ephemera or correspondence. The papers are rich in materials relating to the role of professional women in the theater after World War I through the mid-fifties. However, with the exception of records relating to her personal interest in Jane Cowl, no materials exist that document the last four decades of Emeline Roche's life. The collection includes drafts of chapters from a proposed biography on Ms. Cowl to be written by Frank P. Morse. Not only are there detailed annotations by Emeline Roche, but, in addition, a series of letters between Ms. Roche and Mr. Morse further clarifies important aspects of Ms. Cowl's life and theatrical career. Other writings by Jane Cowl's friends round out a picture of the famous actor, director and author whose theatrical career spanned nearly half a century. The Jane Cowl Papers contain a large collection of materials documenting her professional career and personal life. The papers contain extensive personal and professional photographs. Included are tintypes of Jane Cowl and her mother, as well as photographs of her husband, Adolph Klauber. The Cowl Papers also contain a large number of theatrical scripts, including a promptbook for Romeo and Juliet, which Ms. Cowl directed and starred in, presentation copies of Lilac Time and Romeo and Juliet, as well as other promptbooks and annotated scripts. Ms. Cowl initially wrote under the pen names of C. R. Avery and Alan Langdon Martin, as well as crediting male aliases Theodore Charles and Reginald Lawrence as co-authors of her plays. The papers also include a number of holographic and typewritten drafts of radio scripts, lectures and articles. However, the Jane Cowl Papers contain no letters between Ms. Cowl and her husband, almost no personal correspondence from friends, and little correspondence from theatrical associates, with the exception of materials relating to Jane Cowl's work with the Stage Door Canteen in World War II. The bulk of the personal correspondence about Ms. Cowl is found in the papers of Emeline Roche. Another major weakness in the papers is the shortage of financial and other business records.

Series III. Emeline Clark Roche Papers: Research Files,. 1815-1955 (5.7 linear feet (11 boxes))

Research files are arranged by topic, often further sub-divided by date and country of origin, and contain brochures, color prints, etchings, catalogs, postcards, sketches, research notes, drawings, articles, correspondence, clippings, blueprints and photos. Many folders are cross-referenced to other research materials. The files are particularly strong in the subject areas of architecture and costume design. Included are original English colored engravings of costumes (1815-1830), German colored costume plates from Der Bazar(1880-1898), and colored European costume prints of the 1880s. The series also contains a holographic letter from Queen Mary (1924) found in Box 14, Folder 16 about Queen Mary's Doll House and many cabinet cards and other 19th century photographs.

Series VI. Emeline Clark Roche Papers: Jane Cowl 1938-1988 (.4 lin. ft. (1 box))

The series includes letters to Ms. Roche from Jane Cowl's associates, such as Jane Murfin, with reminiscences about her life and career, plans for her memorial service, and discussions about the purchase of her possessions at auction and their subsequent distribution to friends. A number of documents shed light on Ms. Cowl's career and personal history. The most extensive of these consists of correspondence about a proposed biography of Jane Cowl with working draft chapters. The biography was to be written by Frank P. Morse who first met Ms. Cowl when she was seventeen. Emeline Roche provided extensive comments on the contents of the chapters based on her own research. Ms. Roche and Mr. Morse entered into a series of letters providing detailed information on Jane Cowl's life and colleagues.
