Creator History

The Harvard Summer Dance Center was founded in 1973 as part of the Summer School of Arts and Sciences and Education. The Center hosted courses in Cambridge, Massachusetts taught by an evolving roster of professional dancers. Beginning in 1977, the Center was led by Iris M. Fanger, who served as director of the Harvard Summer Dance Center until her retirement in 1995, when the Center also ended its programming.

Scope and Content Note

The collection dates from 1973 to 1995, and contains photograph prints of Harvard Summer Dance Center faculty and students. Many of the faculty photographs depict individual dancers, and contain handwritten labels with names and dates on the back of the print. The faculty photographs are arranged alphabetically by dancer name.

The student photographs are predominantly group shots. Most are labeled only with a date, although some prints also include instructor or dancer names.
