

The New York Public Library Manuscripts and Archives Division

Guide to the

Albert V. D. Collier diary

1864-1865

MssCol 6091

Summary

Creator: Collier, Albert V. D

Title: Albert V. D. Collier diary

Date: 1864-1865

Size: 1 folder

Source: Purchase from, Charles Apfelbaum, 2002

Abstract: Albert V. D. Collier was a lieutenant in the 15th New York Engineers during the American Civil War. He graduated from Albany Medical College in 1866. The diary reflects the writer's clerical and guard duties as a military surgeon's clerk in Kingston, New York, 1864 April-May, and more extensively his service as an officer in the 15th New York Engineers in Virginia, 1865 January-May. Entries for 1865 describe camp life, drills, disciplinary matters, visits to City Point, construction of bridges and other works, and the siege and fall of Petersburg, as well as family matters, meals and expenses. The writer, apparently a lieutenant, entered the Army on 1864 December 15, commanding men in Company G and, briefly, Company H. Fellow officers mentioned in the text, among them Captain Pierson, identify the regiment as the 15th New York Engineers. Based on internal evidence and other sources, authorship is attributed to Albert V. D. Collier, First Lieutenant of Company G. The endpapers contain a few miscellaneous notes in another hand.

Preferred citation: Albert V. D. Collier diary, Manuscripts and Archives Division, The New York Public Library

Creator History

Albert V. D. Collier was a lieutenant in the 15th New York Engineers during the American Civil War. He graduated from Albany Medical College in 1866.

Scope and Content Note

The diary reflects the writer's clerical and guard duties as a military surgeon's clerk in Kingston, New York, 1864 April-May, and more extensively his service as an officer in the 15th New York Engineers in Virginia, 1865 January-May. Entries for 1865 describe camp life, drills, disciplinary matters, visits to City Point, construction of bridges and other works, and the siege and fall of Petersburg, as well as family matters, meals and expenses. The writer, apparently a lieutenant, entered the Army on 1864 December 15, commanding men in Company G and, briefly, Company H. Fellow officers mentioned in the text, among them Captain Pierson, identify the regiment as the 15th New York Engineers. Based on internal evidence and other sources, authorship is attributed to Albert V. D. Collier, First Lieutenant of Company G. The endpapers contain a few miscellaneous notes in another hand.

Key Terms

Genre/Physical Characteristic

Diaries

Soldiers

Geographic Names

United States -- History -- Civil War, 1861-1865 -- Personal narratives

Names

Collier, Albert V. D

United States. Army. New York Engineers Regiment, 15th (1861-1865)