The Marcella Sembrich Collection

1790-1988

The Marcella Sembrich Collection represents the life of the famous soprano Marcella Sembrich and her starring career both as an opera and concert singer and as a vocal instructor of pupils who became successful in their own right. The collection covers the entirety of Sembrich's professional career from her childhood training to her death, and also parts of her personal and family life (particularly the early years) through correspondence, legal and financial documents, newspaper clippings, and concert programs. The collection was obtained from the home of the president of the Marcella Sembrich Memorial Association in Fairfield, Connecticut: the sheet music and scores came from the Marcella Sembrich Opera Museum in Bolton Landing, New York. The collection material was received from 1985 to 1991. The period covered in the material in the Marcella Sembrich Collection is from 1790 to 1988.

Biographical Sketch

Marcella Sembrich was born Prakseda Marcelina Kochanska in Wisniewczyk, Galicia, Poland, on February 16, 1858. Her father was an impoverished musician named Kasimir Kochanski, who taught her violin and piano at a very early age. She played public performances beginning at age 12 to supplement the family income. These performances brought her abilities to the attention of an elderly local man nicknamed "Grandpapa" Lanowitch, who sent her to the Conservatory in Lwów, Poland. There she began advanced piano studies under the young professor Wilhelm Stengel, who was so impressed with his pupil that he sent her to Vienna to study under Epstein. In her mid-teens Marcella Sembrich's vocal talents also became recognized, and during her meeting with Franz Liszt during which she played violin, piano, and sang, he is said to have advised her to concentrate on her voice because of its usual beauty. Epstein also held this opinion.

Acting upon this advice, Marcella Sembrich went to Milan to receive vocal instruction from G.B. Lamperti the younger for two years. She made her debut in Athens on June 3, 1877 as Elvira in I puritani. She originally appeared under the name of Marcella Bosio because it was felt that Kochanska was too difficult for foreign audiences to pronounce, but thereafter adopted her mother's maiden name of Sembrich. Sembrich married her former teacher Wilhelm Stengel (1846-1917) at age 19, after which he devoted himself to her career. She continued her vocal studies in 1878 with R. Lewy to increase her German repertoire, after which she made a successful European debut in Dresden as Lucia, remaining there for two years. Again as Lucia on June 12, 1880, she gave her first performance at Covent Garden, where she returned for five consecutive seasons, which effectively established her reputation as one of the greatest singers of the time. During this period she became in demand all over Europe, travelling to Russia, France, Spain and the United States for performances.

Sembrich performed as Lucia during the first season of the Metropolitan Opera in the United States, first appearing on October 24, 1883. Sembrich's talents were famously displayed at a benefit concert for Henry Abbey at which she played Chopin on the piano, two movements from Beethoven's Concerto no. 7 on violin, and sang Rosina in Act 2 of Il barbiere di Siviglia. This exhibition of musical ability impressed upon the audience her extraordinary musicianship and solidified the reputation of her consummate artistry. After her season at the Metropolitan, Sembrich went back to Europe and her touring operatic career there, receiving many honors and citations throughout the decades of the 1880s and 1890s. During this time she and Wilhelm Stengel had two sons, Marcel and Wilhelm: Marcel died as a child in 1900. She returned to the Metropolitan in 1898, appearing as a favorite soprano every season except one until her retirement in 1909.

This retirement however, was merely from the operatic stage, as Sembrich continued to give recitals and concerts on both sides of the Atlantic. During World War I, Sembrich, who had maintained a home in France, was threatened with internment as an enemy Polish national. Through the influence of friends she was allowed to go England and then the United States, although her house was confiscated by the French government. For part of the war years Sembrich was the head of the American Polish Relief Society in New York, devoted to the alleviation of suffering for the civilian victims of war in Poland.

After the death of her husband Wilhelm Stengel in 1917, Sembrich retired from performing and settled permanently in New York, becoming a US citizen in 1922. After her performing retirement she embarked upon a new phase of her career, that of instructor. Sembrich taught singing at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and at the Juilliard School in New York City. She also held private summer sessions at her summer home in Lake George, New York. Marcella Sembrich's daughter-in-law Juliette de Coppet, wife of her son Wilhelm, lived with Sembrich and was her assistant in business and professional matters. A number of Sembrich's pupils had successful operatic careers, notably Queena Mario, Dusolina Giannini, Maria Jeritza and Alma Gluck. Marcella Sembrich died in New York City on January 11, 1935.

Scope and Content

The correspondence, personal and professional papers, photographs, sheet music, newspaper clippings, and concert programs represent the career and activities of Marcella Sembrich. The bulk of the collection falls between 1885 and 1925, and as a whole it covers Sembrich's musical career from her early student days in Poland to her death at age 75 in

New York City. Series arrangements are primarily alphabetical or by subject. The collection has two indexes: one for photographs available in the photographic index files, and another for the rest of the material included in the following finding aid. The sheet music is currently being catalogued separately.

The files in the collection contain correspondence; professional and personal papers; concert programs; newspaper and journal clippings; an incomplete card index of performances and clippings from the Sembrich Memorial Studio; posters and concert advertisements; memorabilia-tributes, awards, and citations; books, notebooks, and catalogues; photographs; scrapbooks; and sheet music.

The correspondence files contain letters to and from Marcella Sembrich, Wilhelm Stengel, and Juliette de Coppet, and also many other musical figures of the time. The letters are arranged alphabetically in groupings by either writer, addressee, or subject of correspondence. The index to the bulk collection should definitely be used to locate letters in the correspondence. The letters are in English, German, Polish, and French. There is a selection of letters written by Sembrich to a girl friend and her family in Poland during the early years of her musical studies. These letters illustrate the plans, hopes, and concerns Sembrich had in her youth: they also include her developing relationship with Wilhelm Stengel, and personal concerns about her brother and mother. There are only two from Sembrich's surviving son Wilhelm, who separated from Juliette de Coppet under unknown circumstances and thereafter apparently had very little contact with his family. This son is referred to in the collection as Willy, Wilhelm, or Guillaume. Wilhelm Stengel Sr., the father, also is referred to as Guillaume during the World War I period. Letters from the son are indexed under Stengel, Guillaume/Willy, and Sembrich's husband under Stengel, Wilhelm. The collection also holds many letters from students, who continued to write to Sembrich after their student years. The letters are written in the period between 1856 and 1988, the majority from the 1900s to the 1920s.

The second series of professional and personal papers cover a number of subjects and types of documents. There are files of nineteenth and twentieth century legal documents in Polish and German; mostly wills, birth and death certificates, financial statements, property titles, naturalization papers, and estate documents. There are also concert contracts, repertoire lists and teaching material and related correspondence (much of it from Josef Hofmann of the Curtis Institute). Sembrich did extensive charity work, and there are papers and correspondence for such as activities as concerts given for the losses suffered by members of the Metropolitan Opera during the San Francisco earthquake, and the American Polish Relief Committee. Some biographical material, awards and citations for charitable work, and menus and speeches from tribute dinners for Marcella Sembrich are also included in this series. Additionally there is a handwritten essay by Richard Wagner on the art of Italian bel canto, which has been removed from the collection and placed in the Special Collections Locked Case. This case also holds a Beethoven autograph from the Marcella Sembrich Collection. The series covers from 1868 to 1942.

The Marcella Sembrich Collection holds a number of concert programs, mostly of Sembrich operas, concerts, and recitals. There are programs from performances given by her former students, and some collected by Sembrich's daughter-in-law Juliette de Coppet. The dates of the programs cover from 1874 to 1960, and are arranged chronologically.

The fourth series of material consists of posters and concert advertisements for (mostly) Sembrich performances. These range in date from 1877 to 1909, and are arranged primarily according to size. Some oversized posters have been removed from the collection and placed in the oversized cases (Press 0, Case 4, Drawer 3) in the Special Collections stacks.

Newspaper and journal clippings are also part of the Marcella Sembrich Collection: all clippings have been copied onto acid-free paper due to the deterioration of the originals. They are in a variety of languages such as English, German, French, Russian, and Italian. These clippings extensively cover Sembrich's career and charitable work, from 1870 to 1988. The clippings have been arranged chronologically within four categories: professional, Sembrich colleagues, Sembrich students, and miscellaneous.

The Sembrich Memorial Studio in Lake George, New York began a card file index to the Sembrich material they had in their keeping. These cards are color-coded; white for reviews of operas in which Sembrich appeared, pink for concerts and recitals in which Sembrich performed, buff for programs, green for reviews of operas in which Sembrich did not appear, blue for correspondence, and yellow for contracts. These card files are incomplete in both coverage and arrangement, yet have been retained as a supplemental research tool.

The seventh series in the Marcella Sembrich Collection consists of memorabilia, such as tributes, awards, and citations. Sembrich was honored all over Europe and the United States for both her musical talents and her generous charitable work, thereby garnering a number of formal recognitions from heads of state and organizations. Included also in this series is Sembrich's autograph album, which is full of signatures, dedications, pictures, and drawings by the talents of her day such as Brahms, Verdi, Paderewski, Caruso, Puccini, Mahler, and Hofmann. These are arranged by size.

A group of books, notebooks, and catalogues are also held in the collection, mostly written in English and Polish. There are catalogue lists of decorations at the Sembrich Memorial Studio, catalogues of music given to Juilliard from her collection, and books, some in Polish--poetry and biographies.

A major portion of the Marcella Sembrich Collection is the photographic collection. There are 2,284 photographs, arranged by size. Within each size category they are arranged by groups, such as original or individual pieces (such as autographed pictures); studio portraits of Sembrich; studio portraits of Sembrich in costume; snapshots; Sembrich with one other person; classes taught by Sembrich; group photographs; photographs of objects such as wreaths, furniture, etc.; other people; and locations. The principal subjects of the photographs are Marcella Sembrich, places she lived, places she sang, and people with whom she performed. This material is indexed separately from the rest of the collection. The inclusive dates are from 1851 to 1958, with the bulk of the material falling between the 1880s and 1930s.

In addition to the substantial newspaper and journal clippings in the collection are the scrapbooks, which cover Sembrich's career. Available to the public on microfilm due to acid paper deterioration, the scrapbook materials range in date from 1858 to 1935. The 28 volumes contain photographs, article clippings from newspapers and journals, programs, photocopies of correspondence and autographs, an index of sheet music and vocal scores from Marcella Sembrich's Lake George home, and concert reviews. The scrapbooks are not listed in the following finding aid. The call number for the five reels of scrapbook microfilm is *ZB-2379.

Another major category is Marcella Sembrich's collection of sheet music. This is currently undergoing separate processing and cataloging as of this writing: please see the Special Collections desk librarian for information about the current availability of this music.

The Marcella Sembrich Collection is a comprehensive history of her singing career. The scantiness of in-depth personal and family information is believed to be the work of Sembrich's daughter-in-law Juliette de Coppet, who seems to have purged the collection of all photographs of her husband, Sembrich's son Wilhelm (Guillaume/Willy) and removed other personal material as well. Some of this material has survived however, such as letters from Sembrich in her teens to a dear friend in Poland; letters from Sembrich's husband Wilhelm Stengel to Marcella Sembrich after the death of their son Marcel; a postcard, poem, and letter from their son Wilhelm, and a few brief references to his existence in letters from family and friends to Sembrich.

General personal information can be obtained from the newspaper and journal clipping series which has many articles about Sembrich's life. The collection's use for researchers will primarily be for those interested in her professional career, which is extensively represented in the Marcella Sembrich Collection.
