Biographical Note

Howard Bay was born May 3, 1912 in Centralia, Washington. Both his parents were schoolteachers; his father was an art teacher in particular. Bay's career in set and lighting design began in 1933, and he began working on Broadway productions as early as 1937. He would later be referred to as the "dean of American stage designs."

Howard Bay's set and lighting arrangements were recreated in some 170 Broadway shows in a career spanning more than fifty years. Bay won two Tony Awards as a scenic designer for his work on Toys in The Attic (1960) and Man of La Mancha (1966). His work also included designs for Carmen Jones (1943), Show Boat (1946), The Would-Be Gentleman (1946), Come Back, Little Sheba (1950), Finian's Rainbow (1955), Pal Joey (1963) and The Music Man (1957). He is remembered for his technique of solving design problems with a practical and realistic approach. Bay designs have been used for operas, films, touring productions, and television productions. He also taught set design at various schools, spending most of it at Brandeis University for fourteen years. Bay also contributed articles in his field to various reference books. He was last working on a production of The Music Man to be produced for the Peking Opera House when he died in New York City on November 21, 1986 of a heart attack.

Scope and Content Note

Original designs form the bulk of this collection covering Howard Bay's varied career as set designer and professor. The collection consists of designs from thirty-six productions, including technical drawings, painter's elevations, rough sketches, set renderings, light plots, detail drawings and preliminary drawings. Almost every play, musical, opera or project Bay worked on is represented. Bay also worked on numerous productions through various universities' theatre departments, often contributing to the formation and curriculum of their programs.

The remainder of the collection consists correspondence, office files, published articles, clippings and programs providing production information. The photograph series is largely production related but does include some portraits and snapshots of Bay, including one with Donald Oenslager and Laurence Olivier. The collection also includes awards received by Bay for his contributions to various causes and the artistic craftsmanship of his work.

Organization

The collection is organized into four series and two sub-series. They are:Series I :Original Designs
Sub-series 1 -Production Designs
Sub-series 2 -Technical DesignsSeries II :Office FilesSeries III :PhotographsSeries IV :Awards

Series Descriptions

Series I : Original Designs 1942 – 1964	36 boxes
Sub-series 1 – Production Designs	19 boxes
Sub-series 2 – Technical Designs	17 boxes

The Original Designs series makes up the bulk of the collection. It includes initial pencil sketches and painted designs, which are separated into production designs and technical designs. The designs in the series span most of Bay's work from Broadway productions to his lesser-known college productions. This series includes the original designs for Carmen Jones (1943), Cry for Us All (1970), Man of La Mancha (1965), The Music Man (1957) and Showboat (1946).

Sub-series 1 – Production Designs	19 boxes
19 boxes
Arrangement: Alphabetical

The sub-series includes initial pencil sketches and painted designs. Some production designs have various productions, and are labeled accordingly for domestic and foreign productions.

Sub-series 2 – Technical Designs	17 boxes
----------------------------------	----------

17 boxes Arrangement: Alphabetical

The sub-series revisits many of the same productions from production designs sub-series. Housed in tubes are blueprints, elevations, and lighting plots are and touch on another aspect of design that allowed Bay to express his ideas on a production.

Series II : Office Files 1934 – 1985

Arrangement: Alphabetical

This series includes correspondence with theater organizations, programs of committees attended, pamphlets of theatre productions at various Universities, articles written on Bay, Bay's own published pieces and newspaper clippings. Included among the files are the patent papers for a chair design by Bay.

Series III : Photographs 1937 - 1977

Arrangement: Alphabetical

The photographs series includes stage designs of productions, commercial displays, and publicity shots of Bay. Among the photographs are a group shot of Donald Oenslager & Laurence Olivier with Howard Bay among others. Also included are various prints from Up In Central Park the film with Vincent Price.

Series IV : Awards 1943 – 1958

Arrangement: Alphabetical

The awards series includes various acknowledgements received by Bay for his work and contribution to various causes. Among them is Bay's Donaldson Award for the 1944 – 1945 season.
